

Instructions for including Python code

It's strongly recommended that you return to the Create another algorithm lab to include screenshots of your Python code. If this isn't possible, you can also type your commands in this Document.

When including samples of Python code, consider the following:

- Multiple applications can be used to take screenshots. If you're unsure how to take a screenshot on your device, you can perform an online search such as "How do you take a screenshot in [your operating system]?" Replace "[your operating system]" with your computer's operating system.
- Do not include screenshots of the directions found in markdown cells. Only include screenshots of the code cells.
- If you type your code, highlight it in gray and use a monospaced font, such as in this example: `ip_addresses = ip_addresses.split()`
